Only isolated showers or thunderstorms are expected over the eastern third to half of the state today. Highs will continue to be warm with widespread temperatures in the 80s expected. Only the northeastern mountains will stay in the 70s this afternoon.

Fog may form again tonight, but much of the state will be clear to partly cloudy. Lows will range from the upper 50s in the valleys of the north to the upper 60s in the far southern urban areas.

High pressure will stay overhead on Wednesday. A mostly sunny day is expected, but just a stray shower is possible in the west and also right along the New York border. Temperatures will be rising in the west where highs may approach 90 degrees along the Ohio border. Highs in the Poconos may not get out of the 70s, but the rest of the state will be in the 80s.
